

TOP 10 FLOOR LAMPS

When it comes to setting the mood or atmosphere in a room, not only does proper illumination add to the allure of your personal space, but also the sources of light. While table lamps and ceiling lights serve a functional purpose, floor lamps are expansive in the many different ways one may decorate their space and showcase their creativity. Whether you choose an antique selection to brighten your den or side with a traditional Victorian fringe design for the bedroom, the never-ending possibilities of a floor lamp shine through in the mind-boggling variety in choices. Floor lamps allow individuals to create a mood within their home or office that becomes the focus of the space when one enters the room. A gateway to the past may come alive with a Victorian-style street lamp displaying the soft, burnt orange glow of a custom crafted glass lampshade. Perhaps, the theme of your living room is Oriental – a solid hardwood floor lamp with a Chinese raw lacquer finish with mother of pearl and metal chrome accents will fit into the décor. Colour also helps create a mood, such as the vibrant shades of red in Asian-style floor lamps. This week, we take a look at a few of our favourites!

Asteroid Clear Glass Light.

An angular plastic encased light, the Asteroid is a unique floor or table light. Designed with 24 facets each with its own unique geometry. The minimalist clear glass can be used to add some interesting refractive lighting effects around your home.

Spindle floor lamp.

Spindle lamp has been a sell-out whenever a production run was made. The original lime green version was so popular it has been re-launched for autumn in two new colours — a rich blue and a striking white. Though based on the old fashioned standard lamp, Spindle has a contemporary feel and a great deal of presence, and the 24 coats of lacquer give it such a seductive finish.
